

Do You Have Will-Power?

Not having a will is like pulling up to your favorite fast-food drive-thru with your mouth taped shut. You have strong feelings about what you want, but you can't express them. A will ensures your last wishes are handled as YOU envision – distribution of money, care of dependents, inheritance, charitable donations and the like. (Oh, and we have a free version of a will.)

A Trust for Pets? Fur Real?

Think of how much you love your pet – whether it’s a cat, dog, horse, bird, or maybe even a lizard or tarantula. And they love you right back! (Editor’s Note: I’m reminded of a coworker who had a friendly pet iguana named “Tony.”) Did you know you can legally ensure your pets get care that’s up to YOUR standards, even if you are no longer living? With a pet trust (yes, they exist), you can set money aside and provide detailed care instructions for “Rufus” the dog or “Patches” the cat. (Thinking ahead is not a bad idea, if you have a tortoise, which lives 50-100 years!)
